

Never under any circumstances use these two conductors of the C-MARC™ coaxial cable for any application higher than 20V between the two copper runs within the same coaxial cable.

The cotton layer between the two copper dual fractal braids is not rated for high voltages.